

Dear FCC Commissioners & Staff:

Competition is not just about having a handful of large companies that offer the same exact services at the same exact prices.

Competition also involves smaller companies. Companies that can take the time to innovate without having to service hundreds of thousands of customers. Companies that can pay individual attention to each customer, instead of treating them only as a means of providing funding.

Please, keep the requirements for allowing smaller ISPs onto the larger companies' networks. Keep competition alive and well.

Sincerely,

Micheal Thomas
